About Centurion Electronics

Centurion is the UK's leading supplier of portable and in-car vision technology. Formed in 1993, the company has expanded its focus from vehicle security to innovative multi-media products based on leading-edge flat screen TFT LCD technology.

In 1999, through research and relationship development with manufacturers across the globe, the company launched a new range of in-car entertainment products. Specializing in TFT LCD screen technology and mobile multi-media products, our new products were introduced to the market under the brands Centurion Professional, Plug & Play and Necvox. These new products were aimed at motor manufacturers, motor dealers, mainstream retailers and specialist independent retailers throughout the UK.

Over the past 4 years the company has led the field within the UK in-car entertainment's market; through rapid interest and product development Centurion were able to expand business across mainland Europe.

In December 2002, Centurion was listed for trading on the Alternative Investment Market of the London Stock Exchange. This has helped to further raise the Company's profile and secure additional investment for further expansion and product development.

The company is based in Welwyn Garden City, Hertfordshire and houses sales and marketing, research and product development and warehousing and logistics facilities.

The company has won various awards over recent years which included the Deloitte & Touché Fast 50 Technology Award and the International Fast 500 Award in 2003.
